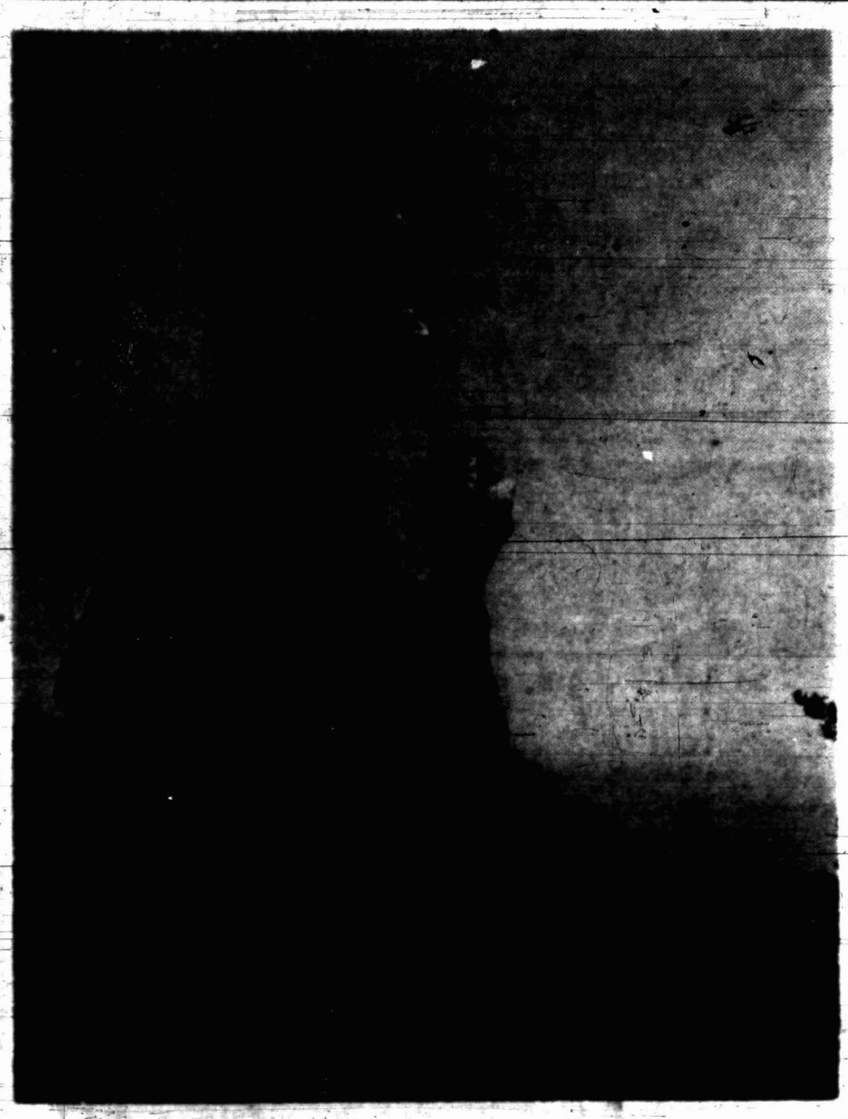
City Clerk Mawdsley Will Not Run For Re-Election; Rose Will Be Candidate



In The Quiet Of The Sur, Tolerton Has Rediscovered One Of Man's Oldest Joys

BY BOB KALLER

David Tolerton, who practices sculpture in iron on the rocky Coast south of Carmel, is one of the few working artists in his field. He is a tall, slow-speaking man, with a ready smile, born into the art world in Toledo, Ohio in 1907. His father was an art dealer and from his earliest years it was taken for granted that he would be an artist of some kind. Surprisingly, in this world of revolt, he was willing.

In 1915 David and his mother came to San Francisco for the Exposition and remained to live. He went to Stanford and the California School of Fine Arts.

Tolerton had a cabin in the high Sierra, and finding that he needed some ironwork done proceeded to do it himself. The decorative possibilities of the medium interested him, and when a friend, Ward Montague, proposed that they go into decorative iron work together, Tolerton agreed.

As a consequence, in 1928 and 1929 he found himself turning out stair rails, metal fixtures and a dozen other familiar objects for architects, as well as sculptural work of his own design. Late in 1929 Tolerton decided to go to Europe. In Paris, London, Florence, Madrid and other centers, for two years he observed the work that European sculptors were doing in iron. He also studied for a time at the Collarossi Academy, then a famous center of this unique art.

Upon his return to the States, Tolerton went to work for Berkeley Metal Arts and then for the Allied Arts Guild in Menlo Park. Here, in addition to his iron work he did some textile blocking and wood working — rounding out his skills and adding to his feel for materials.

Hilbert A Candidate 3 Councilmen Not Yet Ready To Say

The three councilmen whose term of office expires in April were not ready to announce whether or not they would run for re-election. They are Geraldine Smith, Mayor Horace Lyon and Francis Whitaker.

Harry Hilbert, city treasurer since 1944, when he was appointed to fill out the term of Ira Taylor, says yes indeed he'll run again and he hopes everybody will vote for him. Friendly and competent Hilbert, who is the proprietor of Hilberts Dairy Lunch on Ocean and Mission Streets, always polls a large complimentary vote when he runs for re-election every four years. Nobody has ever run against him.

The three out-going councilmen will have served four year terms, Mrs. Smith as commissioner of health and safety; Whitaker as street commissioner, the Mayor is always commissioner of finance. John Chitwood and Carl Patnude are holdover councilmen who still have two years to serve.

Period for filing nomination papers is January 26 to February 16. Election is Tuesday, April 10 and registration of voters closes on February 16. At the last election 34.44 percent of the electorate voted. Number of registered voters has dropped to 2478 from the 2828 at last election.

Council Appoints William Gahagan To Library Board

William Gahagan was appointed to the Harrison Memorial Library Board last night by the city council to replace Mrs. Elise Beaton, who is retiring at the expiration of seven years service. Albert Lester, whose term also expires this spring, is willing to continue on the board and his decision was gratefully received by the council

William Gahagan, the new appointee has lived in Carmel for the past two years with his wife, the former Lorna Plump of Redwood City, and their four children, Michael, 15, a student at Carmel High School; Kathleen, 13, and Lissa, 12, both students at Santa Catalina School for Girls; and Mark, 6, who attends the Mission School. The Gahagans were married in Carmel Mission in 1939.

During the war years Gahagan was a foreign press officer with the O.W.I. in the State Department in Washington, D. C., while his family lived in Berkeley. After the war he attended Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, graduating in 1949 with a major in education. The following year he was an instructor in Dartmouth's Great Issues course, compulsory for all seniors, and dealing with community relations. He also did graduate work at Harvard.

Gahagan moved to Denver where he taught History and English for one year in Morey Junior High School and for two years in the upper division of Graland Country Day School.

Since coming to Carmel in 1953 he has taught history, English and

Beach Ordinance Put On April 10 Ballot, Patnude Is Dubious

At the April 10 municipal election the people will have an opportunity to approve an ordinance that will prevent erecting structures of any kind "on, over and under" Carmel's city owned beach, except "those necessary to provide police protection, to improve public health or to promote public safety."

Carmel has such an ordinance now in the code adopted in 1940 but since it was adopted by the city council, a city council could repeal it, and the present council members 18 months ago discussed putting it on the ballot. If the people approve it, it will require a vote of the people to repeal or amend it.

"The idea is to strengthen it, to give greater protection to the beach," Francis Whitaker said when it was read at last night's council meeting as part of the ordinance calling the municipal election.

Carl Patnude didn't like "taking such a chance. What if the City Clerk Peter Mawdsley's term expires in April and he will not be a candidate in the April 10 municipal election, he told the Pine Cone last night.

"I want to go home for a visit. I haven't been home for 25 years. I have three sisters and a brother in England and I am the baby of the family. I do not feel I should put off this visit any longer," Peter explained.

He calls it a "sabbatical leave" and promises not to be away from Carmel more than a year.

It will be a difficult adjustment for the community to make. An indication of the confidence and affection with which he is regarded, is in the fact that in the 13 years since he was appointed city clerk by the council following the death of City Clerk Saidee Van Brower, he has run unopposed in three elections when his terms of office have expired.

His service to the City and council measures 18 years, since for five years before he became city clerk he was financial adviser and executive officer for the city council.

There will be a great clamor

Adams Reports 1955 Construction Over Million Dollars

Construction in Carmel went over the million dollar mark in 1955 according to City Building Inspector Floyd Adams, who presented his annual report to the city council last night. Three public buildings, the Red Cross, the Presbyterian Church and the Church of the Wayfarer account for $219,000 of the total $1,203,737. Eighteen new residences cost $311,000 and seven commercial buildings totaled $307,000. The remainder represents money spent on remodeling 91 residences, 24 commercial buildings and one public building (City Hall, $2,600.)

Total building permits issued were 144, just three more than the 141 for 1954 but total expenditure for building that year was only $770,765.

"The number of new residences built in 1955 were about one half that of 1954, but the cost-per unit in 1954 was $11,969, while those built in 1955 averaged $17,278," Adams said in his summary. "This reflects some building cost increase, but more particularly it comes from larger homes and better quality. 1955 produced the greatest number and largest investment in public buildings, such as churches, clubs and service organizations that the city has ever had. The number of commercial units constructed were more than twice those in 1954. The residential remodeling was about the same in number as 1954, but the investment per unit rose from $1,378 in 1954 to $1,825 per unit in 1955.

Fees collected by Adams for the city for building, electrical, gas and sign permits totaled $2,730.10 for the year.

Ugh! New Police Car Will Be Tan; Big Tree Doomed

The city council at its meeting last night approved purchase of a new police car, a heavy duty Ford, for $1144. The police department has two patrol cars, one of which is turned in for a new car every two years. Councilwoman Geraldine Smith didn't favor the color, described by Chief of Police Clyde Klaumann, as "light brown." Most popular color for Carmel police cars is baby-ribbon blue.

The mayor proclaimed national bicycle safety week January 15-21 and Carl Patnude told the council about the bicycle rodeo that is to be held at the same time by the schools and recreation department. Kids will be put through a safe riding course and their wheels will be inspected for safety.

Application of Willis Shepard for permission to remove a pine tree on Lobos Street between Second and Third Avenues was approved. There are six other pines pine trees there and this one is leaning. On Matthew Beaton's request, the council decided to remove the 90 foot pine at Ninth and Junipero, "tallest in town" according to Mayor Horace Lyon. Two other large pines will be removed at the same time since the big one can't be taken down without sacrificing them, also. Reason for taking out the big pine; it is so tall the council regards it as dangerous.

The council made City Attorney Tom Perry unhappy by deciding that the service clubs' illegally hung signs must come down and that he, Perry, is the one to see that they do. The Toastmasters have one on the Philip Wilson building at the corner of Dolores.

March 14 Probable Date For School Bond Eelection

Carmel School Board will hold an adjourned meeting Wednesday night to take formal action to call a $338,000 bond election.

Deputy District Attorney John Redmon will be present to advise on legal procedure. School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell will propose that the election date be set on March 14 and that there be four precincts, Sunset School, the Highlands Fire House, Pebble Beach Caddy House and the High School to avoid a jam-up and delay like the one at the last bond election when there was only one precinct, Sunset.

The bonds, if they succeed, will finance land purchase for new school site up Carmel Valley, additional playground space at River and Woods Schools, two classrooms, a life science room and music room at the high school, four classrooms, administration office, fencing, equipment, etc. at Woods School.

GONZALES CAGERS INVADE PADRE GYM FRIDAY NIGHT

A pair of win-hungry Gonzales High basketball teams visit the Carmel High pavilion Friday night for crucial league tilts with the Padre hoop squads. Strong favorites to cop the league title when the season started, the Spartan varsity ran into a string of tough luck and dropped decisions to Gilroy, King City, and Live Oak in their first three league outings. King City nosed out the Spartans, 53-52, in a thrilling overtime battle, Gilroy clipped them 46-35, and the hustling Live Oak club edged them 36-34 in the league's top upset. In the Live Oak game, Coach Bud Guiterrez attempted a discipline maneuver with his starting five, benching the regulars at the start of the game and going with the reserves. However, Live Oak failed to cooperate and built up such a commanding lead that the Spartans couldn't catch up. Regardless of their 0-3 record in league play, Gonzales is a feared opponent and will win more than they lose before the season is finished. Averaging well over the six-foot mark, the rangy Spartans have good backboard control and exceptionally good outside shooters in Ron Garten, Joe Jiminez, and Clem Albertoni. Big Joe Bass, a 6-4 center, operates from the pivot and is considered the best in the league.

Carmel's varsity, after dropping an early season game to the powerful Watsonville Wildcats, posted wins over Palma, Monterey, Hollister, San Jose Tech, and Pacific Grove. Although the Padres have been woefully inaccurate in the shooting department, their sturdy defense has controlled the opponents and compensated for the poor shooting. Carmel's All League center, George Wightman, has been slowly regaining his shooting eye and a top performance by the 6-3 pivot could spark the lethargic Padre attack. Forwards Bob Wise and Jim Konrad have been hot and cold in their basket attempts and will have to be hot against the Spartans if Carmel hopes to match the high-scoring visitors. Carmel's playmaking guards, Mike Mosolf and Dick Jennings, provided most of the offense in beating Pacific Grove, Jennings hitting on the long set shots and Mosolf driving in for jumpers around the key. Carmel has the best reserves in the league and can substitute experienced veterans at all positions. Ready for action at the forward spots are Tom Peyton, Clyde Klaumann, and Dick Ogden. Center reserves are Mervyn Sutton and Bob Durbrow, while Charley Dawson, Bill McCormack, and Dave Gray man the guard spots.

At 7:00 o'clock, Coach Buzz Rainer's lightweight five will trade baskets with Clair Burns' fast-moving limiteds. The Little Padres have overmatched in all their games so far this season but should have a good chance to hit the win column against the green Gonzales crew. Noted for their fast break and pressing defense, the Gonzales gang should provide plenty of action when it collides with the wild-running Carmel Babes. The Padrecitos will open the action with Jack Faia and Bert Macahalig at the forward spots, Dale Dawson at center, and Ted Childers teamed up with Bill Harder at the guard spots.

THROUGH THE HOOP

Abbreviated league action in the B Division of the CCAL finds the Gilroy Mustangs and Carmel Padres resting atop the standings, Gilroy having a 3-0 record and Carmel sporting two wins and no losses. Live Oak, the surprise team so far, is in second place with a 2-1 mark. It is possible that B league officials will forfeit PG's win over Live Oak because the Breakers used an overage player in the game. In that case, the Oaks will share to top spot with Carmel and Gilroy. King City with 1-1 is next in the pennant chase, the Mustangs having whipped Gonzales but dropped the decision to favored Gilroy. Gonzales and Hollister are still looking for their first victory in league play . . . Intramural play at Carmel High will be a lot tougher this season as the faculty enters the league for the first time. With such court magicians as Lloyd Miller, Ray Gere, Dick Hagadorn, John Westover, Goose Rainer, and Stilt Wakefield scorching the nets, the kids will have to sharpen their game to keep up. Intramural play opens next Monday afternoon at the Carmel High pavilion . . . Carmel will be represented by three teams in the Peninsula League this season. In addition to the Carmel Sports Shop and Henry Overin's gang of former Padres, the village will have a class C club composed of high school seniors who are too powerful for the intramural loop. Bill Wakefield, Carmel's Rec Director, will be the mentor for Carmel's entry of Ron Huffman, Mark Hildebrand, Kyrk Reid, David Hunter, Dick Albertson, and Dick Holt . . . Carmel's annual hoop tourney has been officially sanctioned by the California Interscholastic Federation for March 1, 2, and 3. The popular basketball festival brings together teams from Gustine, Fremont (Sunnyvale), Gilroy, Monterey, Gonzales, King City, Pacific Grove, and host Carmel. Pacific Grove won the tournament last season but will receive stiff competition from Fremont and Gilroy when this year's tournament play begins.

Sign Up Monday For Gray Lady Training Classes At Ft. Ord

Mrs. Kathleen Halligan, Field Director, at the U.S. Army Hospital at Fort Ord will be in the Carmel Chapter on Monday to interview women in the Carmel area who are interested in becoming Gray Ladies, volunteering their services to the army hospital. The training classes will be held at Fort Ord starting January 12 and will be the only training class held during 1956. The Gray Ladies will be used for recreation service and personal services to the hospitalized patients. Special training will be given those who wish to work in the craft shop and with crafts on wards.

Mrs. Halligan says there is a special need for volunteers who can serve evenings and weekends in the recreation hall. Call the Carmel Red Cross for appointments with Mrs. Halligan as soon as possible.

AUDUBON MOVIE, FIELD TRIP

William Godall of Berkeley, Pacific Coast Representative of the National Audubon Society, will attend the January meeting of the local group tomorrow night, 8:00 o'clock, at the high school, to show a 16mm color movie, Our Living Heritage. Interested non-members are welcome. There is no admission charge.

The following Monday a field trip will be held on the Hatton Ranch in Calera Canyon. Members will meet at the intersection of Salinas-Monterey Highway and the Corral de Tierra Road (10 miles east of Monterey) at 9:00 o'clock in the morning. Bring lunch.

Los Gatos Art Assn. Has Show In Valley

Currently on exhibit at the Carmel Valley Inn are 19 oil and watercolor paintings by members of the Los Gatos Art Association. The pictures are a portion of the juried exhibit of the Los Gatos Association shown in their gallery this fall.

The paintings were brought to the Valley and hung by Mrs. Harriet C. Sprague, president of the Association, assisted by Cecil Chamberlain. The exhibit will be on display until January 31.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

A recent issue of the Publishers Weekly reports on a radio talk given by Bing Crosby in which he advocated the giving of books for Christmas presents. He said he believed that he was doing the recipients a favor because, he said, "I think our youth today just doesn't read enough good books, is not in contact enough with good literature". He is right, of course. I hope you gave some good books for Christmas, and received some, too.

Next week we shall have four new novels for you, one of which is a mystery by Durrenmatt entitled The Judge and His Hangman. The scene is laid in Switzerland, and Durrenmatt is himself a Swiss. Hugh Walpole is said to have remarked that R. C. Hutchinson, "has a genius for the creation of character unequalled since Conrad". Those of you who enjoyed Hutchinson's Elephant and Castle, will welcome his new one, The September. There are also The Fugitive by Simenon, and The Malediction by Jean Giono, both of which have been translated from the French.

Three new biographies are included in next week's collection. Virginia Woolf is the subject of The Moth and the Star by Aileen Pippett. Portrait of Barrie by Cynthia Asquith is a biography of Sir James Barrie, of course. The title of the third one is self-explanatory because it is called Georges Auguste Escoffier. This last one contains a few recipes from the repertoire of the famous chef. Not many, but a few.

Nine Men by Rodell is a political history of the Supreme Court of the United States from 1790 to 1955. Here we find that our justices are not giants but men, whose motivations are the direct result of their own political beliefs and personal background.

Two books dealing with the phases of our little minds are The Fears Men Live By written by Selma Hirsh, and The Fifty Minute Hour by Dr. Robert Lindner. The first is a study of prejudice in America. The second is a collection of psychoanalytical case histories written almost as fiction, and vastly interesting.

This week's play is by Sean O'Casey and is entitled The Bishop's Bonfire, a Sad Play within the Tune of a Polka. To say it's Irish and it's beautiful is to be guilty of redundance.

Dr. Wyman Richardson was a teacher of medicine at Harvard Medical School and his leisure hours were spent in the country on Cape Cod. His years of love for the outdoors provided the material for his book The House on Nauset Marsh. Other lovers of the outdoors may here enjoy the charms of nature vicariously.

The Japanese version of the Battle of Midway is told us in Midway, the Battle That Doomed Japan by Mitsuo Fuchida, a former captain in the Japanese Imperial Navy. The last book is by David Howarth, and is entitled, We Die Alone. It is an account of the escape of a Norwegian saboteur who made his painful way across Norway to Sweden, 80 miles away.

It's a varied fare we have for you this week. We hope you like it.

BOARD TO EXPLAIN BOND ISSUE TO P.T.A.

School Board members will join forces with Superintendent of Schools Stuart Mitchell in addressing the Carmel PTA this month. Three meetings are planned, on Tuesday evenings at 7:30. The purpose is to acquaint parents and teachers with details of the proposed bond issue for the Carmel Unified School District. The public is invited; the schedule is: Sunset School, January 10; Woods School, January 17; River School, January 24. Refreshments will be served before the meeting.

The Rev. Grimshaw Writes New Book On Shetland Islanders

T. Harold Grimshaw, at one time minister at the Church of the Wayfarer and now living in retirement in Hemet, California, has written a third volume about his life as a young clergyman in the Shetland Islands, Exposition Press is the publisher of the book, Memories of the Shetland Islands.

Known by the Romans as Ultima Thule, the islands in the Shetland group are bleak and barren in scenery but the persons inhabiting these isolated places are warm and colorful as to personality.

Grimshaw in a series of intimate pictures gives incidents to illustrate this fact and leads his readers into the homes of the people. Particularly interesting is his description of the local bird life and the native ponies and the flora and fauna of these "farthest north islands."

One lives for a time with the Shetlanders in this small volume and shares "their unlimited hospitality on very limited means." The characters are well portrayed and there are generous samples of their native poetry for the reader to enjoy.

James Burkholder Has March Of Dimes Under Way In Carmel

James C. Burkholder, Carmel chairman for the 1956 March of Dimes, which started on Tuesday has announced his helpers for the campaign which will continue through January.

Walter Stuefloten is co-chairman; Ellen Stuefloten is in charge of youth participation in the drive; Ed Neroda will enlist the support of the service clubs; Mrs. Roderick Clayton and Mrs. Ivan Tweedie will run the Mother's March collection detail, and Jack and Bonnie Giles will help the youth group distribute the collection boxes around town.

Organizations which will help in the March of Dimes are the Taw Twirlers square dance group which will have a party on January 28; The American Legion which has volunteered to sell the blue crutches to the public on Blue Crutch Day, January 14; and the Pebble Beach Sport Car Club which is planning a special fund raising event.

All the groups are assisted in their plans by Mrs. William Ashley of Carmel, who is the Monterey County Chairman of Women's Activities of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Incorporated.

and Ocean, and the Lions club have theirs hanging against the front of Gene and Parvins restaurant. Perry argued that strangers come to town and need to know when and where the various clubs meet. Geraldine Smith and the mayor suggested that a directory of service clubs "with their emblems, small size," be put on the bulletin board which is against the building on the corner of Dolores and Sixth. Council agreed that under no circumstances should there be a collection of service club emblems on a rack at the entrance to town.

from Carmel people for Peter to change his mind about taking his "sabbatical," for he has furnished the continuity that has kept Carmel city government functioning smoothly during changes of administrations. Councils come and councils go but Peter has always been there for the past 13 years, breaking in new councils, advising wisely, saving the city money and keeping down the property taxes; even before the plush present of the sales tax. A wise and prudent manager, his financial advice is valued and respected not only by the city council but the school board and they too will miss his help during "the sabbatical," for he has been their budget controller for many years.

Peter has been training city license and tax collector Larry Rose as his assistant for over a year, and Rose will run for city clerk with Peter's blessing.

Rose came here in 1945 following his service with the merchant marine during World War II, when he was cadet midshipman and administrative officer at Kings Point, the U. S. Merchant Marine Academy on Long Island. He and his wife, Virginia, have three sons: Wade, six; Penn, nine; and Chris, 11.

During his year at city hall as Peter's assistant, and as license and tax collector he developed an enthusiasm for the work and growing appreciation of its significance.

Linda Malis Awarded B & L Science Medal

Linda Malis, member of the senior class at Carmel High School,, has been chosen by the faculty and students to receive the Bausch and Lomb honorary science award medal at graduation in June. The award is made to an outstanding student in scientific subjects; chemistry, physics and mathematics. Linda's record at Carmel High has been remarkable in these subjects and she has almost a "straight A" record for her high school years in all subjects. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gardner of Carmel Valley.

Next step for Linda is to compete in the Bausch and Lomb nationwide scholarship competition in March which is open to all medal winners in secondary schools in the United States. Four scholarships will be awarded by the Bausch and Lomb Optical Company to winners in this competition. The highest scholarship is $4,000. The scholarships are tenable at the University of Rochester in Rochester, New York.

Linda is interested in pursuing a career in medicine and is especially interested in the University of Rochester as it has a medical school of fine repute. During her high school years she has been active in campus language clubs, class affairs and as a student song leader.

Feast Of The Lights At All Saints' Sunday

The Feast of the Lights, third annual evensong and Epiphany pageant, will be held at All Saints' Church on Sunday afternoon at 5:00 o'clock. All six Episcopal churches in this area are joining together for the Feast under the leadership of the rectors of their respective parishes, Reverend Angus Dun, Jr., Carmel; Reverend Kenneth Sandercock, Monterey; Reverend John Powell, Pacific Grove; Reverend Bernard Lovgren, Del Monte; Reverend David Hill, Seaside, and Reverend William Eastburn, Carmel Valley.

The cast for the pageant will be made up of students from peninsula high schools. The pageant uses symbols of Light and Darkness to dramatize the spread of God's Kingdom, according to the Reverend David Hill. Candles are to be given each member of the congregation and will be lighted during the service and carried from the church into the home.

HETCH HETCHY CONTROVERSY

A new book by Oscar Lewis, writer of Californiana, is always a literary event. High Sierra Country is the title of the latest, published last July. Mr. Lewis is mainly interested in the field of California history and his new book follows this line of interest.

Ten pages of it are devoted to the story of what he calls The "Rape" of Hetch Hetchy. If I had been writing the book, I should have used no quotation marks. That probably stamps me as taking sides in the controversy, which I freely admit that I have been doing. Every true wilderness conservationist takes sides in this historic battle which raged for more than a decade at the beginning of this century and was finally lost by the conservation forces.

Mr. Lewis describes the main events well and impartially, although he fails to point out that San Francisco could have obtained its water supply from a reservoir on the Tuolumne River below Hetch Hetchy Valley. The only reason for damming the valley and thus destroying one of the finest scenic gems in the national park system was to get the additional power that a higher dam would give.

Sympathy for the water users of San Francisco was therefore not an inssue, though the city politicians hypocritically and astutely used it as such in their campaign. Commenting on this after it was all over, Congressman Louis Cramton, Chairman of the House Public Lands Committee, said: "San Francisco came to Congress begging for a water supply, and constructed instead two power houses".

In one paragraph Mr. Lewis, departing from his role as an impartial historian, made a categorical statement on his own initiative, which I am going to use my remaining space to comment on. He wrote: "It presently grew clear that the dire results opponents of the measure had foreseen had not come to pass. For the transformation of the Hetch Hetchy Canyon into a mountain lake did not materially lessen the scenic attractions of the region; indeed, in the opinion of many, it served rather to enhance them".

I can't understand how anyone who has ever visited the present reservoir could make such a statement. I visited it a year ago and have a set of color slides that effectively disprove the truth of Mr. Lewis's assertion. If printed proof is needed, a 1954 publication of the Sierra Club, entitled Hetch Hetchy — Once is Too Often, will certainly give it.

In this brochure photographs of the famous valley in its original state are reproduced. Following them is a devastating two-page spread showing it as it now looks, with the draw-down edges of the reservoir given their needed prominence. One good look at this exhibit is all that is needed to convince the most stubborn doubter that as Congressman Cramton said: "San Francisco has sold its birthright for a mess of pottage".

The Time Has Come .

By Kippy Stuart

Don't get too cross at wind. Now, I do not refer to that recent baby hurricane we suffered; I mean general wind. Without the blow-blow we would have no growing things. Wind is the calisthenics of the horticultural world. When you see a wind swept tree, watch its dancing orgy, going to town in a big way. Branches are stretched, sap begins to run, and Spring is here.

March is supposed to be our windy month, and why do you suppose Nature designated that one month for the big blow? That is the period trees and all growing things need exercise. Aside from exercise, think of the clean-up period in March. Dead leaves are torn from living branches and sent whirling off to fertilize some needed field. Wind grinds debris into suitable fertilizer for the soil and gives the soil rebirth.

Wind does play havoc with my lady's hat, but if she objects too much, just don't wear a hat in March! I love to feel wind whipping through my hair and since I have come to understand the therapeutic value of wind I no longer resent a reasonable blow.

Wind has another benefit. Trees that have had the long winter sleep have grown lazy and their roots are apt to be slack. Along comes a big blow and believe me, honestly, roots wake up to take a firmer grip on the soil.

So . . . I am for a good blow!

"Sweet and low, sweet and low

Thank you for your patience

We're grateful that most of our customers had uninterrupted service right through the recent heavy storms and disastrous floods. But you may live in one of the areas where service was out for a time. If so, we thank you for being patient until our crews could restore your service.

When the gales struck and the floods came, they hit us along with everyone else.

Some of our facilities were flooded and temporarily taken out of operation, but the service interruptions experienced by our customers came from damaged electric lines. Literally hundreds of lines were ripped down by heavy winds and raging water.

Our employees worked valiantly around the clock, however, and held interruptions to relatively short periods in most cases. We are proud of their selfless devotion to public service.

So once more, thank you for your cooperation, your understanding, your patience. And—like you — we sincerely hope the floods will never come again!

Circle Play Review . . .

By Dora Hagemeyer

Out of the Apocrypha, from the Book of Tobit, comes the story which the Scottish playwright James Bridie has dramatized as Tobias and the Angel. This delightful play was presented last week end by the Golden Bough Players in the Circle Theatre under the direction of Charles Thomas. It marks another achievement for the director and the whole cast. To have created the ancient atmosphere of 700 B. C. so convincingly in the limited space with the close proximity of the audience is no small accomplishment but it was most cleverly achieved. The attention was completely held, and the sub-structure of the play remained intact throughout.

In writing the play James Bridie has held closely to the scriptural story but he has brought the language up to date so that the lines are often humorous and familiar. Of the Angel, he says:

"I thought it necessary, too, that an Archangel, for whom time had no objective reality, should be a thorough modern. He has, therefore stolen a little from my vague recollection of Plato. Apart from this, his detachment, his dignity and his peculiar sense of humor are all to be found in the original."

This supernatural visitor, the Archangel Raphael, named Azarias in the play, was superbly characterized by William Quiett. In the guise of a porter, he projected a dignity and unassuming superiority which seemed to come from a noble hierachy of unearthly beings. Using the language of the people, he nevertheless expressed the fundamentals of divine wisdom with surety and power. Standing back of the timid fears of Tobias, he called forth his courage and made it grow into deeds of valor and manliness. It was a characterization of the power of miracle seldom seen on the stage, a fine piece of work, worthy of the highest praise.

Tobias, played by Gene Eplett, was also remarkably well done. As the wavering, frightened little man, lovable but weak, who outgrew his small stature, became a hero, conquered his fears, faced danger and finally won a beautiful wife, he gave a splendid performance. The play of emotion between his commands to Azarias as to a servant and his obedience to him as to a master was a most delightful interchange of attitudes. Tobias was a thoroughly charming character, a difficult piece of work sensitively and most capably performed. He kept the admiration of the audience throughout.

Tobit, the blind father, victim of the Assyrian captivity of the Hebrews, was another clever representation. His blindness seemed actual, as the fluttering hands felt around to acquaint themselves beyond the staring eyes. His speeches were Biblical and noble, indicative of study and prayer. But he too had a sly wit on occasion which kept him secure from pity. This was finely portrayed by David Eldridge.

Anna, wife of Tobit, was splendidly done by Betty Fowlston, full of passionate grief and discontent. Sara, daughter of Raquel and bride of Tobias was beautifully played by Anne Frye. This was one of the principal characters of the play and the delicate love scenes, flowering out of the jealousies and disappointments of a tempestuous nature, were exquisitely and tenderly acted. Her love of the simple, genuine qualities of Tobias grew as her preception increased, enlightened by the angel.

Marcia Kuster, dancing for Sara and her handmaidens in the walled garden, created a few moments of rare beauty as her lithe little figure wove the lines of a beautiful Persian dance created by Ruth Ford. The handmaidens, Karen Bryant, Judy Paplow, Marcia Gifford and Lee Alexander, hvaing little to do except to be glamorous, succeeded very well indeed. Bud Rose as Mirzah Khan and Edgar Bryant as Raquel

FALLING TREE

Gust after gust of wind ripped wide the night,
Rain staggered crazily across the roof,
The giant cypress, long, heavy limbs thumping air
Swayed like a sick swan and tumbled;
Limbs shrieked loose from the gaunt trunk,
Fierce wild fingers clutched at nothing, like
A drowning colossus going down, down
In one last waltz with wind; then settled,
Bedded upon a couch of earth. The house stood bare.
Stars once seen through those high old branches
Moved not, but shone more brightly; the falling
Sound now ebbed away to register
Somewhere among stars; rain dripped
From its upturned clusters, and the wind mourned.

—David Borden.

POSTLUDE

Hearkening now the voices of the crowd,
Have you forgot the faint Parnassian music
We heard between the bracken and the cloud?

What have you found amid the many faces?
Nothing remains for me, save the spent echo
Of words we said in falcon-hovered places.

O tryst too long delayed, too long denied!
I meet on changing paths a faceless phantom
Exile and chill as mists of eventide.

Empty the forest now, empty the stream;
Your naked body on the noonlit hill
Has gone with the cloudy lovers lost in dream

—Clark Ashton Smith.

RAINBOW BEND

Let me not halt, not pause,
Though sinews slacken and the peremptory heart
Batter frail walls of breath.

Growth writes gaunt laws!
Up-sloping from a green turf's tender start
Past bliss, tears, wonder, death,
Steep as remorse, uncouth as agony,
Mounts the trail man climbs dark through destiny.

I would step firm to the end:
Not falter, pleading,
Before tall ramparts of that rainbow bend
Where faith calls, leading.

—Helen Searight Faulkner.

Moncado Speaks . . .

A book review from the Philippines Mail, an English language monthly newspaper edited and published by Delfin Cruz of Salinas for the Filipino Communities of California, Oregon and Washington. The Pine Cone Press has printed the Mail for 20 years.

Moncado Speaks is the title of a neat and obviously comprehensive booklet outlining the life and work of Hilario Camino Moncado, founder and president of the Filipino Federation of America. A copy of the work has been presented to the American Consulate at Tiajuana, Baja California.

Apparently not intended for the general reading public, Moncado Speaks is revelatory of the almost mysterious life and character of the man whose name does not only appear on one of the most historic documents of the Philippines, but as one virtually worshipped as a saint and leader of his immediate constituents abroad. It clears up for all to see the bare facts of his life, his struggles from obscurity and humiliations from the time he landed as a common laborer in Hawaii to the time he went to live in Mexico.

Extraordinarily tall for a Filipino and endowed with a rare quality as an athlete, Moncado first won recognition as the pitcher whose teams triumphed over all other teams in the Territory of Hawaii during his sojourn there. Embued with the dreams and ambitions of most young Filipinos at the time, the aching and yearning for the freedom of their native land, Moncado came to the mainland to prepare himself for his tasks ahead, conferred or assumed. In those days, Filipinos did not have to be designated by their government to represent their country. Each one abroad took it upon himself that it was his duty to be ambassadors of the Philippines, examples of what were then a so-called subject people, fighting as they did for the ultimate independence of their country.

It would thus be easy to understand why Dr. Moncado is one of the most sniped-at Filipinos today. He has been accused of intellectual quackery, that is, that he had garnered academic degrees from non-existent schools and colleges and universities. He has been accused of military fakery, because he wears the uniform of a five-star general of an army. After the liberation of the Philippines he was indicted and tried for collaboration with the enemy.

Going through Moncado Speaks explanations to all the foregoing can stare one in the face. That he was acquitted of the charge of collaboration is properly documented. That he had come by the intellectual adornments that often follow his name are also there for the inquirer, the inquisitive who up to this time may have only known Dr. Moncado from what his malignders have said or written.

There is no doubting the fact that Dr. Moncado is opulent in more than one way. Because of the trust and confidence of his own Filipino Federation of America, he was given the very rare privilege of putting his dreams into realities. His people were weaned from the pitfalls of vice and led into virtually saintly lives, minding their own businesses and coming together whenever time came to honor the men and women who had lived and died that their native land will live and continue, not only as a geographic fact, but as a people struggling towards what is most precious to free men everywhere, the independence of their country.

Yet inspite of what could have embittered a fighter for the freedom of his native land, Dr. Moncado had been persistently loyal to the principles upon which the United States of America was founded. He went to the Philippines upon the insistence of his people in the Federation to represent his assembly district and to fight within for the very ideals they believed would solve the cultural and political differences

Marilyn Grover Wed

The marriage of Marilyn, daughter of Mrs. Glenn Goodwin Grover and the late Dr. Grover of Seattle, to Robert Noel Heard, son of Mrs. Gladys Slater Heard of San Marino and Dr. Wesley Heard of Monterey, took place on the afternoon of December 17 in All Saints' Church. The candlelight ceremony was performed by the Reverend Angus Dun Jr., before an altar banked with white crysanthemums, and, reflecting the Christmas season, carols were played as a prelude to the wedding by Robert Forbes, church organist.

Marilyn wore a floor length wedding gown of white chantilly lace and tulle over slipper satin made with a scoop neckline, cap sleeves and a full bouffant skirt. The lace of the bodice and deep skirt yoke were accented with seed pearls and irridescent sequins and a matching lace cap held her circular veil in place. She carried a white prayer book from which fell a cascade of fleur d'amour and lilies of the valley centered with white butterfly orchids. The traditional "something old and something borrowed", was an heirloom strand of pearls loaned by Mrs. Karl W. Hisgen.

Miss Betty Burns of San Francisco and Port Washington, Long Island, attended the bride dressed in a waltz length gown of silver gray chantilly lace over pale blue satin, with matching headband and slippers. A spray of white, silver-tipped carnations formed her bouquet.

The best man for the groom was Gregory Teaby, and ushering the guests to their seats were Jean Pierre Kunstle, Will Shaw, Edgar Leslie and Howard Liggett of Salinas. Harold W. Goodwin of Wichita, Kansas, the bride's uncle, gave her in marriage.

The reception following the wedding was held in the Copper Cup Room at the Naval Postgraduate School where the decorations repeated the silver and white color scheme of the wedding and included a large lighted white Christmas tree. The tiered wedding cake was topped with a wreath of lilies of the valley. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Don B. Allen, Mrs. Karl W. Hisgen, Mrs. Howard Liggett, Mrs. Will Shaw, Mrs. J. P. Kunstle and Mrs. Edgar Leslie.

Mrs. Grover, attended her daughter's wedding in a delft blue peau de soie gown and pinned an orchid to her handbag. Mrs. Heard, mother of the groom, wore a dress of cocoa colored lace and an orchid corsage.

Marilyn changed to a cranberry red cashmere tweed suit faced in winter white when she left for her honeymoon. With it she wore a winter white coat and hat and brown accessories. Marilyn and her husband are now back in Carmel where they will live while the latter completes his preliminary engineering studies at Monterey Peninsula College.

Out of town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goodwin of Wichita, Kansas; Mrs. J. W. Goodwin, grandmother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Eldridge, Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Shipman, Mrs. Ralph Slater, Ashbury Bushnell, Barbara Bushnell, Mr. and Mrs. Jon Older and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Clark.

Margaret Hensel Married

The marriage of Margaret Potter Hensel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zenas L. Potter, to Philip Haliday Smith, took place at 5:00 o'clock on Saturday afternoon in the Carmel Presbyterian Church. The ceremony, witnessed by a few close friends and relatives, was performed by the Reverend Joseph M. Ewing.

The bride wore a pale pink wool sheath dress made with a jeweled satin midriff. Her small hat was of matching jeweled satin and her accessories were black. Her corsage was a spray of mauve orchids.

Mrs. Charles Mohler attended the bride in a gray wool dress, with which she wore a white feather hat and an orchid corsage. Junior attendant was the bride's daughter, Judy, dressed in a pale, blue organdy dress with a lace-edged bertha collar and a full skirt. Her nosegay bouquet was pink carnations. Also present at the wedding was the bride's son, Peter Hensel.

Mr. Potter gave his daughter in marriage and best man for the groom was Clifton Mason.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Zenas L. Potter. The table from which the wedding cake was served, was covered with an Italian cloth, lighted with pink tapers in crystal holders and centered with pink carnations. Mrs. Potter, who assisted the bride and groom in receiving their guests, wore a sheer violet wool ensemble with an orchid corsage.

Following a Southern California honeymoon the bride and groom will return at the end of this week to Carmel to live.

Damage In Yosemite

Several parties of Carmel skiiers got their Christmas skiing at Badger, but not until December 27, when flood waters had receded and the roads again became passable. School Superintendent Stuart Mitchell reports that when he and Mrs. Mitchell and their girls, arrived in the Valley December 27 they learned that the Valley had had the largest flood in its history. Goods had been boosted on the shelves at the stores to the five-foot level, and the flood had reached five and a half feet there. The Mitchells saw a waterline half way to the windows on the cabins near the river and were told that there is frantic work going on to get the damaged cabins habitable again. Out of around 600 cabins, only 250 were in condition to be used immediately after the flood. Skiiers from the Valley had to take a detour road around a 20 by 50 foot washout at Grouse Creek on the road to Badger.

But skiing conditions made up for everything. They were, "the best I have ever had in my life. They were wonderful," said Mitchell.

Other Carmelites who enjoyed end of the year skiing at Badger were Richard Hagadorn and Lloyd Miller, who brought with him the two Dianes, his daughter and Diane Redding, Trulee Scarlet, and John Thompson.

Colorado Relatives Visit

Christmas Day dinner guests of the George B. Turners were Mr. and Mrs. Zig Novak, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Johnson, and their sons, Doug, Kent and Roddy, and Mr. Harold Johnson.

The group were at the Reuben Johnsons' for Christmas Eve dinner which was highlighted by lutefisk and Swedish bon ost sent by relatives from Nebraska.

The Novaks came from Denver, leaving Reno just before the flood and storm closed three highways in the vicinity.

December 28, date of the Johnsons' eighteenth and the Novak's seventeenth anniversary, provided occasion for extra festivities for the group, which celebrated with dinner at the Pine Inn. Because of illness in the family, the Norman Gustafsons of Mead, Nebraska, were prevented from joining the group to celebrate their sixteenth anniversary which is also on December 28.

Daughter For Hummels

On December 29 Chrissianne Hummel was born in San Francisco, she is the second child and first daughter for Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Hummel (Virginia Woodward). The baby's brother is 18 months old Charles. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Woodward of Carmel. Mrs. Woodward went to San Francisco to greet the arrival of her granddaughter and is expected back in Carmel shortly. Uncles for Chrissianne are Donald Woodward, Jr., of Oakland and Richard B. Woodward of Santa Barbara. Chrissianne's grandparents operate the supply store in Moss Landing, commuting each day from Carmel. They are the friends of fisherman all up and down the Pacific Coast who stop at the landing for supplies and to see the Woodwards.

New Year At Loftons

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lofton decided to give an old-fashioned family welcoming party for the New Year. They and their daughter Nancy decorated the ceiling of the living room with serpentines, balloons and Japanese paper birds and toys, moved out the furniture to make space for dancing, arranged a withdrawing room and served ham and homemade bread, cookies and fruitcake, punch and wine in the dining room. Among those who called during the evening were Dr. and Mrs. Gina Rizza of Riverside, Chuck Yerkes, recently returned from Germany; Mr. and Mrs. John Nesbitt, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kahn and their son, David; Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw Williams and their two children, Alice and Boz; Mrs. Alister Miller from Santa Barbara and her three children, Nicholas, Allison and Andrew Oliver Wilgress; Guy Buenveniste from San Francisco; Dr. Eric Berne, Marie Short, Jake Kenny, Betty Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Doner and their daughter, Tasha; Dr. and Mrs. Russell Williams with Homey, Mardi and Lucinda Lloyd, Sidney Trevvett, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Marcus, Phillip Macdougal, Juanita Price, Lieutenant and Mrs. Nathaniel Baylis, Robert Coleman and Reford Shea. Assisting the Loftons in the preparations and entertaining of the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Chaffey of Palo Alto.

Christmas Christening

Celebrating the true spirit of Christmas was the recent double christening of the two children of Marine Sgt. and Mrs. Thomas Silvear, (Karen von Meier). In a Christmas Day ceremony in the Little Chapel of the Church of the Wayfarer, with Dr. K. Fillmore Gray officiating. Brian Thomas, 20 months old son of Karen and Tom, had as his godparents, his paternal aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Wilkinson, and two months old Adrienne Jean, had her maternal aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. Carol McKenney, Jr., as her sponsors.

Attending the ceremony were the grandparents; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Silvear and Mrs. Julian von Meier, Kurt von Meier, home on leave from Navy School in San Diego and the three McKenney children, Erin, Carol and Gael.

Karen and Tom were here for ten days leave over the holidays, spending their time alternately with their respective parents, and participating in the holiday activities with their former school friends also home for the holidays. They returned to their home at El Toro, Marine Air Station, just prior to New Year's Day.

McGinnis' Rose Bowl Party

Five years ago Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGinnis invited a few friends to their home to see the Rose Bowl game on television and so established their annual Rose Bowl party. The fifth in the series of McGinnis' New Year's Day parties was held on Monday starting at 1:30 o'clock, when between 60 and 70 of their friends gathered around three television sets after setting up a pool on the outcome of the game. At halftime barbecued hot dogs and hamburgers were served to the group and the only flaw in the whole afternoon, says Mrs. McGinnis, "was that UCLA lost."

Wayfarer Auxiliary

Welcomed home to the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer after a siege in the hospital, Mrs. John R. Christie was the honor guest at the organization's luncheon and meeting on Tuesday. The welcome was expressed in a poem by the church "poet laureate," Dr. E. Leigh Mudge and a spontaneous poem by Mrs. C. A. Nedderson. Devotions were given by Mrs. Mudge.

At the business session Mrs. Christie's report on profits on the Wayfair which she planned, developed and directed, showed $2027.72 net, with a few later sales to increase the amount slightly. The members voted to set aside $250 to meet preliminary expenses for next fall's fair, and appropriated for the building fund, if the Wayfarer Child and Susanna Circle concur, $1000 from the fair proceeds. Treasurer's report showed that more than $4000 has been raised and spent, during the past three years, in completing and furnishing the kitchen, with a few more items still to be provided.

Hilarious entertainment was furnished, before the business meeting, by Mrs. Henry Venn in a reading on how to reduce, which became a reducio ad absurdum, as the lady impersonated told of her humiliation and grueling maltreatment at the brands of the supercilious members of the fat-removing emporium.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The purifying power of true prayer will be set forth in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Sacrament" at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Bible passages will include the counsel of Christ Jesus regarding prayer (Matt. 6:6): "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret shall reward thee openly."

Continuing the explanation of prayer, a correlative passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy states (15:9) "To enter into the heart of prayer, the door of the erring senses must be closed. Lips must be mute and materialism silent, that man may have audience with Spirit, the divine Principle, Love, which destroys all error."

The Golden Text is from Psalms (51-10): "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."

Delayed Oil Show To Open On Monday

The delayed January show will open Monday at the Carmel Art Association Galleries, Donald Teague, association president, said yesterday. A $7000 renovation job is in progress at the galleries but the oil gallery should be finished this week end so that the show can be hung Sunday. Also on Monday, the annual meeting of the art association will be held in the oil gallery. Seven members will be elected to the board of directors at that time.

Alterations and renovations of the association buildings consist of painting inside and out, new kitchen equipment, lighting improvements and enlarged storage space.

Moncado Speaks . . .

between the Philippines and the mother country. He fought there to the bitter end and suffered indignities as patriotically and as stoically as any that ever claimed exclusiveness to the privilege among the sons of the Philippines.

Among Filipinos in this country, there may be recriminations and after-thoughts upon reading through Moncado Speaks. For Dr. Moncado, man and spiritual leader of no mean number of Filipinos, was early stung by the need or craving for belonging. Today, Filipinos belong to this or that fraternity or organization as fulfilments of that craving. Dr. Moncado created the Filipino Federation of America to fill the void in his days as one who intensely craved, not only to belong to something, but for the patriotic duty to contribute to the recognition of the Filipino people as a nation worth their freedom. In the processes that brought these developments, Dr. Moncado may claim virtuosity and importance in steering a large number of his countrymen from the evils of belonging in subversive groups that even in the beginning of his own organization they tried to infiltrate and subvert. And it could be believed that Dr. Moncado, the consistent and persistent thinker and doer that he appears to be, even to this day from the isolation of his Mexico residence, continues to be an influence and force for the betterment of his people.

Circle Play Review . . .

were both colorful and lively characters, adding to the picturesque motion of the play. Kit Jones added a note of Nubian darkness as a slave.

And let us not forget Toby, the four-footed companion of Tobias, also safely immortalized in the Apocrypha. This was played by Tigger with natural simplicity and charm.

The whole play was the poetic representation of a great truth: that the human being may draw upon divine resources of strength and courage, provided that he is not lacking in obedience and humility.

Dining Room Damaged By Fire At Pine Inn

A fire at the Pine Inn, discovered at 3:05 o'clock Wednesday morning by night clerk Homer Carroll, destroyed the pantry and smoke-damaged the dining room and kitchen. Damage is estimated at $11,000 and the main dining room will be out of service for a week. Food will be served, however, in the Victorian Room starting tomorrow night.

The fire, believed to have started by a short in the pantry refrigerator wiring, was well underway before it was discovered. (Carroll heard the crackling of the flames and went to investigate.)

The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department worked for an hour to put out the fire.

on the premises at the same time, and Tolerton gradually became fascinated with the yielding nature of ceramic clay — perhaps in reaction against the unbending strength of iron. Soon he sat up a pottery operation of his own and ran it for ten years in Los Gatos, exhibiting in numerous shows, and winning prizes in Seattle and San Diego.

After a hitch in the Navy during the war, Tolerton married and returned to this section of the California coast. In 1937 he had built a cabin for his mother on land back of the site where Nepenthe now stands. She had made of this a year-round home, and still lives there.

Tolerton decided to duplicate the process for himself, and gradually found that he needed certain things made of iron, Bit by bit the inexorable process started again. He made things of iron for himself, then for neighbors and friends as they requested them, and finally on commission for architects.

Tolerton says, with a grin that he woke up one morning and found himself back in the iron sculpture business whole-hog. Actually he is quite happy about the process, for iron has certain properties that no other artists' material has, he claims. For one thing, because of its strength it can be extended into planes in a way that no other material will tolerate.

For another, a piece of iron sculpture, like a house, enables the artist to work with space enclosed by lines or planes, and not just the latter alone. Iron structures also enable the onlooker to see the inside of the form under construction, and thus a kind of transparency of volume is achieved.

Another important factor in working with iron, curiously enough, is that an artist can redo sections. He can work over an unsatisfactory portion by reheating it, or add on or cut off pieces, thereby being able to approach problems in much the same way as a painter.

Another advantage, and one that is drawing many young artists to iron work today, is economy. A piece of iron material for a fair sized work might run $30, while bronze for an equivalent piece of sculpture would cost $350 or $400, in addition to labor involved. Most young artists do not have the money to invest in expensive materials, and the finished price is often so high with bronze that most purchasers are priced out of the market.

Despite the hardness of iron, Tolerton says that working with it is not too taxing and there are a number of women iron sculptors. He himself finds the problem of enclosing space a far more challenging one than merely modulating the outside of a volume.

Tolerton also claims that it is possible to secure motion without gesture in ironwork, something not very easily accomplished with other materials.

Although he occasionally does representational works, Tolerton finds himself more and more doing abstract pieces, because abstract work stirs the onlooker's imagination, and because the whole tendency of modern sculpture is in the direction of seeking to express an emotion or a motion, or an event, rather than an object.

The Santa Barbara Museum of Art has just concluded an extensive exhibit of Tolerton's works, and he has also shown recently at the Paul Kantor Gallery in Beverly Hills, at the San Francisco Museum of Art, and at the Third Biennial Exhibit in Sao Paolo.

The City of Paris Gallery in San Francisco, the Stanford Research Institute, and the Pebble Beach Gallery have also had exhibits of his works.

Removed from most of the pressure of civilization, with the companionship of his wife, and a view over the water; Tolerton, is calm and quiet, has rediscovered one of mankind's oldest joys, the pleasure of working with and shaping iron.

Beach Ordinance Put On April 10 Ballot

people should turn it down?"

The existing ordinance would still be in effect, it was pointed out, but Patnude thought that future councils would not be justified in supporting the ordinance in the code if the people indicated in the election that they did not approve of it. "How can you go against a vote of the people?" he demanded, adding that he was a hold-over councilman and would be faced with the responsibility of decision.

The other holdover councilman, John Chitwood, was not enthusiastic about the ordinance, either. He complained that the idea of putting it on the ballot had been sprung on him. He had heard nothing about it until that moment when the city attorney had read it as part of the ordinance calling the municipal election.

"We discussed it, and it has been in my file for 18 months," said Whitaker. It had probably been discussed at one of the meeting when Chitwood was away on a visit in the midwest in the summer of 1954.

Chitwood thought it was unnecessary, "frosting on the cake" and he didn't like to act on it when he hadn't had time to look it over or think it over, but when he was assured that it follows the existing ordinance word for word with the addition of the of "over and under" in the phrase "on the beach," he was willing to vote yes on putting it on the ballot. Patnude, also, decided to go along.

"Of course I approve of protecting the beach, and I don't suppose there is much chance of the people turning down the ordinance," he concluded.

The council will author a 500 word composition explaining the ordinance and it will be sent out to the voters with the notices of the polling places.
